1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to a heat recovery unit, and more particularly to a heat recovery unit for use in a combination of a direct expansion type air conditioner and a heat pump. 2. Description of the Prior Art A conventional heat recovery unit comprises a heat exchanger, an expansion valve and a flow reversing valve. The heat exchanger is installed in the expansion valve and is connected to the expansion valve with a flexible pipe. The flow reversing valve is connected to the pipe with another flexible pipe. When the unit is energized, the heat exchanger is cooled by the coolant and heat is recovered. However, the expansion valve has an integrated heat exchanger so that the heat recovery unit cannot be operated as a direct expansion type air conditioner. Further, there is a problem in heat recovery unit because a coolant is released to the atmosphere through the expansion valve or the pipes, although it is impossible to exchange heat between the coolant and an external air. In view of the foregoing problems, it is a primary object of the present invention to provide a heat recovery unit for use in a combination of a direct expansion type air conditioner and a heat pump. According to an aspect of the present invention, there is provided a heat recovery unit for a combination of a heat pump and a direct expansion type air conditioner. The heat recovery unit includes a first heat exchanger for a refrigerant in the direct expansion type air conditioner, a first expansion valve connected to the first heat exchanger, a second heat exchanger, which is provided to exchange heat between the first heat exchanger and a coolant in the heat pump, and a second expansion valve connected to the second heat exchanger. The first and second expansion valves have means for controlling a discharge flow rate of the coolant of one or the other of the first and second expansion valves in accordance with a pressure difference, which is generated between an inlet and an outlet of the first expansion valve. In this construction, it is possible to control the discharge flow rate of the coolant of one or the other of the first and second expansion valves in accordance with the pressure difference, which is generated between the inlet and the outlet of the first expansion valve. Therefore, it is possible to control the discharge flow rate of the coolant, and the pressure of the discharge flow can be set to a desired value. The discharge pressure can be set to be different from the inlet pressure. As a result, the heat

Q: Set display none by default using Angular 2 What I'm trying to do is to hide a div that has the ng-hide attribute by default when a user visits the page for the first time. I tried with the ng-show or ng-if, but both Angular 2 browsers don't seem to be aware of those property. I need to know if there is a way to hide it by default using Angular 2. Any ideas? A: It seems that this is not available yet but working for me: this div will be displayed by default Q: Why does Apache log to correct file, but not to console? I've created a virtual host for my Django application, and have it working via WSGI. The command python3.4 -m http.server 9000 seems to fire up the server and logs to the correct file, but does not show anything on the console. I don't seem to find much information for Apache on the subject, I found this though: WSGIScriptAlias / /home/adam/some/site/app/wsgi.py Order deny,allow Allow from all I've tried adding an Allow from all to the relevant Directory Statement with no success. Apache seems to keep files in /var/log/apache2/ A: You should log a message in there, to check what's going wrong. In general it's a good practice to log all the messages inside the code. Alternatively, you can switch to Django development server to get better debug messages on stderr. 1515 Mesa Avenue, Phoenix, Arizona Property Details 1515 Mesa Avenue, Phoenix, Arizona 85014 - Just moments away from Saddlebag Ranch and only minutes from the Central Ave. Light Rail line!
